MICHELIN GUIDE RECOMMENDED

Washington Jefferson Hotel

Imagine being surrounded by all that midtown has to offer—Radio City Music Hall; Times Square; Rockefeller Center; even Central Park and Lincoln Center. Now, are dollar bills coming out of your ears? If they are, you're not staying at the Washington Jefferson Hotel. This causally sophisticated hotel is a gem in the heart of it all with a comfortable price that lets you enjoy dinner and a show.

Its simple elegance offers a respite from the sensory overload of the neighborhood's "look at me" neon lights. One glance at the crisp white walls, hung with only a flat-screen television and a small, simply framed picture, and it's clear that the Washington Jefferson gives you everything you need without anything you don't. Penny pinchers love the petite rooms (suitable for single occupancy only), but no room is a budget buster.

The staff aims to please, whether it's pressing an item of clothing or suggesting a sightseeing tour. The fitness center is open 24 hours to accommodate busy travelers. Shimizu Sushi & Shochu Bar has been slicing and dicing fresh fish for two decades. If sushi doesn't float your boat, amble over to Triomphe Restaurant, which shares owners with the hotel.
